

To Whom It May Concern,

I am writing on behalf of Ms. Zahraa Mohamed Amin, who spent her training period with the Systems and Digital Transformation Department, which I head at the Shura Council.

Trainees are usually judged on what they know when they arrive. I prefer to judge them on how soon the department can depend on them, and by that measure Ms. Zahraa did very well. She absorbed unfamiliar material quickly, retained what she was taught, and reached the point of working with minimal supervision earlier than most.

She is dependable in the way that counts day to day. She kept her commitments, delivered what was given to her without needing to be chased, and said plainly when something was unclear instead of proceeding on an assumption. She also held herself to a standard above what was asked of her; on more than one occasion she returned work more thorough than the brief required.

Within the team she was cooperative and consistently well-mannered. She communicated clearly, supported those around her willingly, and conducted herself throughout in a manner that reflected well on the department.

I have no hesitation in recommending her. She will bring the same diligence and steadiness to any role she is given, and I am confident she will prove an asset to whoever is fortunate enough to employ her.

I would be glad to answer any questions you may have.

Sincerely,
